Eileen's Biography

Clients retain Eileen Ahern as counsel because of her reputation as a tenacious litigator and an incisive strategic advisor. She couples these attributes to best position her clients' cases for success, whether in court or by a tactically advantageous settlement.

Eileen specializes in counseling and defending clients in high-stakes consumer matters, including consumer protection and privacy class actions, and Section 230 litigation. She also regularly defends product liability matters and litigates complex contract disputes. Eileen's clients have spanned a cross section of industries, including technology, telecommunications, consumer products, financial services, utilities, and automotive. By focusing on strategic advice, critical early motion practice, and positioning for victory in opposing class certification, Eileen has secured a long track record of favorable results for her clients.

Eileen's work consistently garners attention in the industry, earning her recognition as a "Local Litigation Star" in California by Benchmark Litigation, and one of the "Top Women Attorneys in Southern California" by Super Lawyers. Recently, Eileen won a motion to dismiss by prevailing on a Section 230 immunity defense on behalf of her client, a widely known social media company, in a high-stakes product liability matter. In another case of note, Eileen defeated certification of a putative class action alleging violations of a California consumer privacy statute on behalf of a retailer client. In another putative class consumer action alleging privacy claims, Eileen was recognized by Daily Journal for

PARTNER

- Pamela Gossoo v. Microsoft Corporation. On behalf of Microsoft, defeated class certification in a putative consumer class action alleging violation of the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act based upon the alleged illegal collection of personally identifiable information from consumers—even in the wake of scores of retailers settling these claims on a class-wide basis across California.
- Geoff Chait v. Harbor Freight Tools, USA, Inc. Defeated a class certification motion in a putative class action in which the plaintiff alleged the illegal collection of consumers’ personal information, in violation of the Song-Beverly Credit Card Act, successfully persuading the court with Harbor Freight Tool’s interpretation of the Act.
- Schertzer v. Bank of America, et al. On behalf of one of the nation’s largest independent ATM providers, in a putative nationwide class action alleging violation of various consumer protection statutes based on alleged illegal fees, filed a motion to dismiss the complaint that was granted in full, including with prejudice as to the consumer statutory claim under which damages and punitive damages were available. A significantly narrowed, amended complaint on behalf of a California-only class was filed. Shortly thereafter, the firm’s client and the plaintiff settled on an individual basis. The case remains pending against other defendants.
- Individual Consumers v. National Discount Tool and Equipment Retailer. On behalf of a national discount tool and equipment retailer in a product liability lawsuit in which three plaintiffs alleged that the firm’s client sold a defective product that caused permanent, disfiguring injuries, successfully filed a forum non conveniens motion to move the case from California to Georgia where the accident occurred. After securing motion in limine rulings excluding expert opinions bearing on product defect issues, the parties settled on very favorable terms for the firm’s client, terms which likely could not have been secured had the case remained in California.
- Hotel Owner v. Leading Hotel Company. Prevailed in an arbitration defending one of the world’s leading hotel companies against a claim brought by the hotel owner, in which tens of millions of dollars were potentially at stake. The arbitrator ruled in favor of the firm’s client on all issues and, on her own initiative, also awarded the firm’s client its attorneys’ fees and costs, which were discretionary under the parties’ agreement.
- Brian Luko v. Ticketmaster, LLC. Secured judgment on the pleadings in Ticketmaster’s favor without leave to amend in a Song-Beverly Credit Card Act class action case, which was named a “Top 20 Defense Verdict” in California by Daily Journal.
- Lucy Mirando v. Ticketmaster, LLC. Prevailed against the odds on a motion to compel individual arbitration in a consumer putative class action against Ticketmaster.
- Kelly Reed et al. v. NBTY, Inc. et al. Secured summary judgment in favor of dietary supplement manufacturer defendants in a class action alleging violations of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code 17200, Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code 17500, and Cal. Civ. Code 1750 in connection with workout supplements.

- Richard Haley v. The Procter & Gamble Company et al. Defended Procter & Gamble in a putative class action, in which the plaintiff alleged product liability, warranty, and violation of the Consumer Legal Remedies Act (“CLRA”) claims. After eliciting significant admissions from the plaintiff and key witnesses at depositions, the plaintiff agreed to an individual settlement on terms very favorable to Procter & Gamble.
- Southern California Gas Company v. Syntellect, Inc. After prevailing on a motion for summary adjudication of liability, which the Ninth Circuit affirmed, secured a $9.6 million judgment in a patent infringement indemnity action on behalf of the country’s largest gas distribution utility.
- Webceleb, Inc. v. Procter & Gamble et al. Successfully defended Procter & Gamble in a trademark infringement action stemming from its popular People’s Choice Award Show, prevailing on summary judgment and affirmed by the Ninth Circuit.
- Chad R. Enniss v. Warlock Powerboats, Inc. et al. On behalf of KeyBank, obtained summary judgment in the bank’s favor on claims for alleged violation of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act.
