Sharon's Biography

Sharon Song brings a practical, client-centered approach to business litigation, shaped by extensive experience representing Fortune 500 companies, technology leaders, and financial institutions in high-stakes disputes. Her practice focuses on complex commercial litigation, including contractual disputes, data privacy, and technology matters, as well as class action defense and trial work.

At Willenken, Sharon takes on substantive responsibility across case strategy, motion practice, discovery, depositions, client communications, settlement negotiations, and trial preparation. She has defended clients in matters involving complex fact patterns, RICO allegations, class exposure, government investigations, and other business-critical disputes.

Before joining Willenken, Sharon completed a secondment at LinkedIn, where she helped develop global litigation strategy, negotiated a class action settlement, managed outside counsel, and advised on issues concerning user policies and evolving privacy laws. Her in-house experience gives her practical insight into how legal teams assess litigation risk, business objectives, outside counsel performance, and case strategy. Sharon previously practiced at an Am Law 50 firm and other litigation firms in Los Angeles and the Bay Area.

Sharon earned her J.D. from Harvard Law School, where she served as Supervising Editor of the Harvard Journal on Legislation and externed
